WHAT IS SRST? ADVISORIES NEWS & INFORMATION PROGRAMS & EVENTS SOUTH RIVER RECREATION CONTACT

In the fall of 2000, the South River Science Team (SRST) was formed to serve as a focal point for technical and scientific issues concerning mercury in the South River and downstream waterways. In addition to providing technical direction for the mercury monitoring conducted in the South River, the team focuses on filling data gaps to develop a better understanding of mercury behavior, reviewing new technologies, addressing risk-based questions, and ensuring that there is effective communication provided to the users of the river. The team meets four times a year at the office of the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality in Harrisonburg.
